

Malouf Dental

CORONAVIRUS (COVID-19) MESSAGE

To our patients, suppliers, contacts and the community

Malouf Dental is committed to ensuring the ongoing health and safety of our staff, patients and the wider community.

Due to the current situation, we are implementing precautionary measures in line with The Australian Dental Association's recommendations. This means we will continue to implement the high levels of infection control we have always practiced, alongside additional modifications to the practice environment to limit transmission and "flatten the curve." Patients will be screened for physical symptoms prior to entering the surgery and procedures will only be performed on a case by case basis to protect staff, patients and our community.

The link between dental health and general health is well documented. We can manage emergency dental procedures on broken tooth / infection / abscess / swelling and/or pain at our clinic since our aim as health practitioners is to ease the burden on the healthcare system to ensure our hospitals are being utilised for COVID-19 testing.

Our regular practice phone number email will still be operational; however, we appreciate your patience should we take longer than usual to attend to your calls.

We hope to return to normal operation soon but are committed to doing our part in "flattening the curve" and protecting our staff, patients and the community. We are following this situation very closely and aim to keep everybody informed via social media updates during these unprecedented times.

Thank you for your understanding and patience during these challenging times and stay safe.

Kind regards,

Dr. James Malouf and the Malouf Dental team
